OF A JULY MORNING

From "Living Close to Nature," by Robert Sparks Walker in Rosary Magazine for July

One of the most prolific writers among the local press is Robert Sparks Walker, editor of the Southern Fruit Grower magazine. Aside from his editorial work he finds time to contribute to many of the well-known magazines, and both his prose and verse are not only always considered literary gems, which never fail to thrill the reader; therefore his name is becoming familiar with readers of the best periodicals. Among his latest contributions, which is reproduced below, is a characteristically striking one which pulsates in unison with nature:

"A July Dawning.
"I was awakened by a rooster's husky announcements that it was coming day. I looked out and there was a slight evidence that the night had begun to vanish. The cock continued to call attention to the tints of a new day. Pretty soon a thrush nightingale sent a keen message that must have awakened the souls in every household. Other nightingales joined in with the first and the woodland began to echo with voices of other nightingales. A cardinal bird which seemed to be depending on the thrush nightingale for information first forth in a vigorous repertoire which resembled some enthusiastic preacher. A killee then screamed across the meadow, and a crested flycatcher called from the gatepost. Mingle between all these was the nightingale's familiar working roundelay, 'beard, beard, beard,' spoken in such a manner as to lead one to believe that he was rushing along, fearful that his stomach would not be replenished ere the sun shot his golden rays above. Just then the turtle dove's mournful coos blended in the one great symphony and the bluebird apologized for not joining the chorus sooner. The mock ingbird followed the bluebird, and softened the great strain and finally the jay's metallic yet wonderful voice was no longer still. The woodlands echoed for miles with the notes of wind whistlers, and when the first golden sunbeam burst across the eastern horizon it heard the greatest song sung in unison, welcoming the return of the

CAPTAIN AND MRS. MARCUS D.
O'NEAL AND THEIR CHILDREN

One of Chattanooga's babies whose father is in France serving on the battle front is Ruth Louise O'Neal. Little Ruth Louise was seven months old Sunday. Capt. and Mrs. Marcus D. O'Neal, Jr., came to Chattanooga last September from Camp Morgan, Mobile. Capt. O'Neal is Irish-American and Mrs. O'Neal is of Canadian parentage. She is of the fairest blonde type. Capt. O'Neal is of the regulars, having been nineteen years of army service in the Philippines, on the Mexican border and elsewhere. Two ties now bind him to Chattanooga. The commission of captain was bestowed upon the former Lieut. O'Neal while at Camp Warden McLean last fall and the little daughter of the family was born here last December at the home of Mrs. Dora Davis Allen in St. Elmo. Mrs. O'Neal and children are now with Mrs. J. B. Young on Alabama avenue. Capt. O'Neal has command of Company E, Sixth Infantry, said by one of the higher officers to be the best trained company in the regiment. A letter received this week by the wife and dated June 20 was sketched on mere scraps of paper. Capt. O'Neal wrote that his command had been under shell fire for a fortnight. He had warm praise for his men, saying: "They surely can fight every one of them is of the finest make!" He closed by asking that the prayers of home people be ever for them over there. In previous letters Capt. O'Neal told of a handsome old castle where he was quartered. "France is still beautiful," he wrote. "How wonderful it must have been before the war!"

PROF. AUGUST SCHMIDT
TO BE PROF. KING-SMITH

Prof. August Schmidt has been granted a special decree by Judge Will Cummings, of the Hamilton county court, changing his surname to King-Smith and will in the future sign his name in that manner.

Prof. King-Smith is one of Chattanooga's best known musicians. Recently he applied for overseas service in the Y. M. C. A., but was rejected owing to the name and the fact that his father was born in Germany. Prof. King-Smith's mother is an American, and he was born in York county, Pennsylvania, of good old Revolutionary stock.

His wife was before her marriage Miss Alice King, of Grand Rapids, Mich. Through delicate courtesy to her, the family name of King was also adopted. The name Schmidt, while German in form, is also a patronymic in Holland and Switzerland.

Housewives Should Know
How to Can Without Sugar

In these days of scarcity of sugar, it is announced by the department of agriculture, all housewives should possess the secret of canning fruit without it. This product makes an excellent filling, to be sweetened later, for pastry. It is well known that the cold pack method of preserving some extremely acid fruit, such as green grapes and rhubarb, are successful sugar savers. While all fruits are not amenable to the cold water process, the boiled fruits may be kept for a very long time without sugar in the canning by observing a few general rules enunciated by the department of agriculture. A recent contribution to the Nashville Banner says:

"In canning fruits without sugar, can the product the day it is picked. Cull, stem, seed and clean fruit by placing in strainer and pouring cold water over it. Pack the product carefully in hot glass jars or tin cans until full. Use a teaspoon, wooden ladle or table knife for packing purposes. Pour boiling hot water over the product in the hot jar. Place rubbers and caps in position, not tight. If using tin cans, seal completely. Place in the sterilizer, or canner, and sterilize for the length of time given below according

CATHOLIC KNIGHTS TO LOCATE "LOST SOLDIERS"

New Department Established for Satisfaction of Parents of Missing Army Men.

One of the newest activities in war work is the announced establishment by the Knights of Columbus of a "lost soldier department." Word is sent out from Washington of the constant appeal of families who cannot come into touch with members in training camps or overseas. To fill the wish to reach those who through carelessness or other reason fail to write home, the department will begin its investigation. Men killed and wounded on the battlefield are cared for and reported by the Red Cross.

The mission of the new department will, as its name states, endeavor to locate men who seem to be "lost" to friends and relatives. A number of members of the local organization, K. of C., were consulted, but as yet had received no information concerning the establishment of the new department.

MR. AND MRS. ENGLEHART
ENTERTAIN AT ST. ELMO HOME

Mr. and Mrs. C. Englehardt entertained Monday evening at their home in St. Elmo, celebrating their fifteenth wedding anniversary. Patriotic colors were attractively arranged about the living room. In the dining room garden flowers were used in decorating. A large wedding cake, upon which was placed fifteen miniature flags, was the central decoration of the table. An ice course was served. Misses Etha Brown and Monica Hixson, nieces of the hostesses, presided over the punch bowl. About fifty guests were present.

H. L. HARBIN HONOR
GUEST OF BIBLE CLASS

One of the most interesting gatherings of the Lookout Mountain Bible class was in the nature of a lawn party Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Harbin. All members of the class and their wives were cordially invited, besides several outside friends.
Rev. Battle McLeister and Rev. Kinsolving interested the party with eloquent talks. Otherwise the evening was spent in talks by members of the class and patriotic singing.

During the evening it was discovered that it was the anniversary of Mr. Harbin's birth, and hearty congratulations, with wishes for many happy returns were offered by the seventy-five guests present.

No birthday cake with telltale candles gave away the number of life's milestones that had been passed by the genial host, but that he had passed them happily and well, and landed at as high a point as Lookout mountain was within itself a matter of congratulation.

TO COLLECT ALL WAR ACTIVITY OF WOMEN OF CHATTANOOGA DISTRICT

Formal Opening of Headquarters by Local Woman's Committee, Council of National Defense, in Volunteer Building on Monday Night—Brilliant Reception and Patriotic Program Mark Event.

Having come into possession of one of the handsomest rooms in the city, to serve as headquarters, the local woman's committee, council of defense, celebrated the event Monday night with a brilliant reception and patriotic program.

The large room in the new building of the Volunteer State Life Insurance company was thereby formally presented, graciously accepted and patriotically dedicated to service, representing the event Monday night with a brilliant reception and patriotic program.

Few were prepared for the surprise in store when the brilliantly lighted room, with its marble columns and flags of its spacious dimensions, its adaptability to all needs of the component organizations, was presented to view.

A goodly assemblage was in attendance, and the occasion, even though marked by a dedicatory program as serious as the purpose for which it was designed, was entirely informal.

Members of the council of defense, with Mrs. Charles R. Hyde, vice-president and mistress of ceremonies, in the absence of the president, Mrs. W. J. Loring Clark, received the guests, assisted by Mrs. E. Fenton Moore, chairman of arrangements; Miss D. F. Montague, vice-president for East Tennessee; Mrs. C. C. Nottingham; Mrs. C. E. Buek and others of the executive board.

In recognition of French independence day, various insignia of both France and America were noted among the decorations, in the draping of many flags and pennants with crest. The tricolor of France was conspicuously displayed, together with other of the flags of the allied nations. The president's table was arranged upon the side opposite to the entrance, and was massed with palms and potted plants, the gifts of the Crouch greenhouse.

Displayed at intervals along the waiting tables were placards bearing title of the seventeen different departments of public welfare, now variously collected for which the parent organization stands. "Red Cross," "child welfare," "food conservation" and other lines closely allied with the greater war propaganda and program were represented.

The Ceremonial.

Patriotism marked the formal presentation and acceptance of the splendid new room, which will serve as headquarters and a clearing house for all the war work done by women in Chattanooga.

Stationed at the president's table with Mrs. Charles R. Hyde, presiding officer, were Mrs. D. P. Montague, vice-president for East Tennessee, and Mrs. D. F. Beckham, secretary. Mrs. Montague, at the conclusion of the opening ceremonial, took charge of the program. Mrs. Hyde, after calling the meeting to order, felicitated the organization upon its possession of the room, and pleaded incidentally for a permanent home for all club activities as well, hoping the plans for a new auditorium might include this question also.

Mrs. William H. Pryor led in the concerted singing of "America," assisted by Miss Eloise Baylor, Mrs. Margaret Shallday and Mrs. F. C. McCleary.

The invocation was offered by Rev. Charles R. Hyde.

The formal presentation of the room was made by W. A. Sudd on behalf of Z. C. Patton and others, of the Volunteer State Life Insurance company, through whose beneficence the gift was made possible.

W. A. Sudd.

Mrs. Sudd, in graceful tribute to the help being rendered by womanhood in the prosecution of the great war, stated that the Volunteer Life Insurance company had deemed it a privilege to be able to donate the room as headquarters for local work, since the present activities of women are now considered quite as important as that of shouldering arms. He said that in consideration of the fact that this country has not yet felt war, but that future days must be darker before the conflict closes, "all that we men can do and all we have is yours, since it is a war for existence and protection of womanhood the world over."

Mrs. C. C. Nottingham.

Mrs. Nottingham, chairman, through whose influence and enterprise the central location was secured, presented in concrete form a comprehensive history of the formation and progress of the National Council of Defense, with its co-ordinating and auxiliary woman's committee. She touched upon the personnel of its founders and an "organization of organizations," and read from the printed page the list of its several departments. In conclusion

Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Underwood, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Moser, and daughter, Miss Yena Mae Moser; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carr, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Underwood and Miss Helene Underwood. They will spend the week in and around the city.

Mrs. Luther Gordon, of Sheffield, Ala., is the guest of Mrs. Will Chambliss.

Mrs. W. P. Hays has gone to the mountains of North Carolina to visit Mr. and Mrs. Phil Hays.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stegall and Mr. and Mrs. Thornton have returned from a motor trip to Birmingham.

Miss Josephine Wicks is spending the summer at Y. W. C. A. She will return to Maryville college Sept. 1.

Will Call Roll of Wife's
Lovers at Divorce Trial

A hint to the wife is sufficient, and, if the guilty parties have any grip, prepare to pack them now. James Morgan entered suit in the circuit court Tuesday morning and charged his wife with adultery on numerous occasions with a number of different men. Complainant says he will name the men at the trial. He insists he is in possession of all the facts, times and places, as well as names. Complainant claims that he and his wife were married on March 17, 1912, and lived happily for several years. Finally the wife became restless and a roving disposition took possession of her. This restlessness, of course, led to the inevitable, and soon she became enamored with another other than her husband. Then another came upon love's horizon, and another, and so on, until now the husband says at the trial he will call the roll. The husband says he has never at any time given his wife cause for such conduct and has always been a loving, kind and dutiful husband.
